

AAU Sullivan Award – Background

From Wikipedia: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/James_E._Sullivan_Award

The inaugural winner of the award was golfer Bobby Jones, winner of 13 majors between 1923 and 1930. The first female recipient, in 1944, was swimmer Ann Curtis, who won more national AAU championships than any other woman, while the most recent winner is Ohio State football player Ezekiel Elliott. The award has been presented to multiple recipients on only one occasion – in 1999, to twin sisters Coco and Kelly Miller.

The AAU Sullivan Award has been given out since 1930 to the nation’s best amateur athlete. Only one finalist will join the illustrious list of previous winners which include: Bobby Jones (1930), Doc Blanchard (1945), Wilma Rudolph (1961), Bill Bradley (1965), Mark Spitz (1970), Bill Walton (1973), Bruce Jenner (1976), Carl Lewis (1981), Joan Benoit (1985), Janet Evans (1989), Peyton Manning (1997), Michael Phelps (2003), Tim Tebow (2007), Shawn Johnson (2008), Missy Franklin (2012) and dozens of others.
